

WOMEN'S CLUBS TO PRESENT 1000 GIFT BOXES TO VETERANS

Tenth District Federation To Sponsor Work For Soldiers.

The Federation of Clubs of the Tenth Congressional District has completed plans for bringing Christmas cheer to the War Veterans at Great Lake and North Chicago hospitals and their families.

On Monday, December 19th, at nine o'clock the club women will assemble at Great Lakes where they will pack over 1000 boxes to be given to the Veterans for Christmas. The various clubs are furnishing the gifts to fill the boxes. All Tenth District club women are invited to participate in this activity as well as to be Good Fellows, and are asked to give their names to their club chairman.

At a recent meeting of the Tenth District club Chairman of Co-operation with War Veterans held in the Red Cross Recreation Hall of the U. S. Naval hospital at North Chicago Dr. Wilhite told of the scope of work done in the hospitals and encouraged the women to do everything possible to make the surroundings home-like for the men.

Dr. Forkin and Dr. Kendall of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau held an open discussion and explained satisfactorily many of the problems which these women have met in their work. This Bureau has given the names and other information of the needy families of the Veterans to the Tenth District clubs who are going to act as "Good Fellows" in bringing Christmas cheer to them.

May Yet Be Employed

It was a shocked purist who exclaimed at the uniqueness of the use of the word "uniquely." Iniquitous, he called it, but really doesn't it sound as if it ought to be in good usage?—Christian Science Monitor.

Inlaid Steel Blades

India was in possession of a steel secret once, which is lost now. This was the inlaying with gold of steel blades in such a manner that the strength of the blade was not impaired nor its temper spoiled.

Remains and Relics of Primitive Man Unearthed in Illinois

Enterprising archaeologists have uncovered a number of facts concerning the lives of neolithic man but none more important than that recently unearthed in Waterford township in Fulton county, near Lewis town, Illinois. A gigantic mound was opened there and the skeletons of more than seventy mound builders were found by the explorers in one tomb. The mound, located on a bluff overlooking the Illinois river, is crescent-shaped and about five hundred feet in length. The height varies from six to twelve feet, but a few years ago it was about thirty-five feet high. Constant cultivation of the farm on which the mound is located accounts for the great reduction in height.

Among the notables present at the opening of the mound was Dr. Warren K. Moorehead, of Andover, Massachusetts, who is also one of the leading archaeologists of the University of Illinois. Dr. Moorehead spent several days studying the excavated material. President Kinley of the University of Illinois also spent several days at the mound and declared the find of great scientific value. Chicago archaeologists spent several days taking photographs and studying the skeletons. The Smithsonian Institute sent its representatives to the scene.

The skeletons are in a fair state of preservation and reveal some interesting facts concerning these early people. Many of them were giants in stature, while some of the skeletons are of the smallest type of humanity. Several skulls were fitted with plates of false teeth, which were apparently cut from the skulls of other men. Under each skeleton further digging is done, for it is there that are found the tools, and vessels of copper, together with priceless jewels and ornaments. Strings of pearls totaling more than a thousand of the precious gems have been found, which testify to the wealth of this ancient race. Other relics are copper axes, stone effigy pipes, copper armor plates, flint arrows, a large collection of beads, daggers made of the bone of deer, bear teeth ornaments and also copper ornaments.

Length of Rivers

Usually a river's length is measured by shore surveying. Occasionally it is calculated by a steamboat. Knowing the rate of speed and the time the journey takes, a computation can be made.

SALEM MAN HAS LUCKY ESCAPE IN TRUCK-AUTO CRASH

Pioneer Club Enjoys Day's Outing at Racine Y. M. C. A.

Alfred Schmidt had the misfortune during the recent ice storm to have his Ford car completely ruined by a gravel truck which skidded on the pavement striking the Ford car and crushing it beneath the weight of the heavier vehicle. The occupants escaped uninjured.

Sixteen of Mr. Monksman's Pioneer club boys were taken to Racine by Mr. Monksman, C. V. Cook and Mr. Nord Saturday. They visited the Y. M. C. A., where lunch was served in the banquet room. Later they played indoor baseball, spent some time in the Y. M. C. A. pool swimming and returned home after an enjoyable day.

Mrs. Anna Cook is confined to her bed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hartnell.

Mrs. George Lichter of Somers called on her daughter, Mrs. A. Murray, on Sunday.

Thos. Fleming is spending a few days with friends in Chicago.

The Priscillas met with Mrs. McCormick on Thursday. A good number of ladies were present and a pot luck lunch was served.

The Miner School P. T. A., gave a dance at the Salem opera house Friday evening. Adam's orchestra furnished the music.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Schonscheck and children of Channel Lake spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallart.

The Jubilee Bunch club met with Mrs. A. Murray on Tuesday. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Hattie Shale, Miss Ella Mohn, and Mrs. Frank Dix.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dix of Kenosha visited Mr. and Mrs. Dix on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rompesky visited Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallart Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Dibble of Antioch visited their son, Sylvester Dibble, and family Sunday.

Louie Tewes and Wm. Gallart transacted business in Woodstock on Saturday.

Miss Grace Rome of Kenosha spent over the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rome.

Mrs. Kate Jarugo and son, Louie, spent Sunday with relatives in Kenosha.

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Smith on Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Baker of Kenosha. Five hundred was played. The prizes were awarded to Mrs. Leslie Baker, Mr. Baker and Louie Johnson.

The Royal Neighbors elected the following officers on Thursday evening: Oracle, Mrs. John Evans; Past Oracle, Mrs. Ida Martin; Vice Oracle, Mrs. Mary Acker; Chancellor, Mrs. Ada Hutton; Recorder, Mrs. Ada Hutton; Receiver, Mrs. Mary Olson; and Marshall, Mrs. Ida Schultz.

Mrs. Harold Vanderberg was a Racine shopper Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cook visited Mr. and Mrs. Joe Goodman in Kenosha Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schmidt spent several days of last week in Milwaukee at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Paul Rowald. Herman Mekow and Mr. Schmidt attended the implement convention.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Evans and daughter of Trevor, Mr. and Mrs. Harter and family of Pleasant Prairie, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shollhoff of Bristol were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richards and son visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schultz at Wilmet Saturday.

Miss Erna Schmidt of Milwaukee spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schmidt.

Dr. Fletcher returned on Wednesday from New Orleans where he attended a National Medical convention.

Louis Tewes returned to Waukegan Sunday after spending some time with Wm. Gallart and family.

A number of Salem friends surprised Sylvester Dibble at Paddock Lake on Saturday evening, the occasion being his birthday anniversary. The evening was spent playing cards after which refreshments were served.

JABEZ GORM was a hard nut to crack and proud of it. Nobody realized it more than the group of hard men who sat around a table with him, comfortable in their arm chairs, warm with the heat of steam radiators and plenty of coal, and little interested in those who could not pay for protection against the bitter late December cold.

"I guess he could pull through if we nursed him a bit," one of the group was remarking. "He's young and enthusiastic. His organization's good. Never let himself get captured like this before. Sure will be a lesson to him."

"Nurse him long enough, he'll get into the wholesale line and increase competition. Aren't there enough of us already?" It was Jabez Gorm who spoke.

"If you don't encourage the good ones a bit, you're apt to get all the more bad ones." A hard voice from a hard face was speaking on the other side of the table.

"Ever seen a good one when he's selling against you?" Jabez countered. "Kluda hard to hammer a fellow the first time he's up against it," a rather kinder voice broke in.

"Harder he's hammered the tougher he'll get. That's how I got toughened," said another.

On and on the debate went. Figures were tabled. How much the debtor owed; how much he was likely to produce in bankruptcy; how much the dividend would be; whether it would pay better to take 50 per cent and get rid of a potential rival, or get 75 and let him start again with a clean sheet, or give him lots of time to pay in full.

On and on they argued. The snow clattered up the window and deflected the outside sounds of happiness and good cheer, of hastening feet, of shivering limbs, of arms flapping to keep hungry and ill-clad bodies warm.

And the argument went on. Cheerful greetings, happy salutations, heartfelt good wishes were exchanged right and left in the street below; but in an upper room of the big hotel the hard-faced group argued on and heard nothing.

"Well, look, fellows, we can't stay all night. I gotta take the train to-night. All packed up an' everything. Going to play golf in Florida over the holidays. Gotta get this thing over quick or I miss that train."

"Lucky dog. I can't afford to play golf in Florida." This from Jabez Gorm. "Neither can I afford to play good Sammartino to bankrupt young fools. Let him assign and be done with it."

The final decision was so registered, and the creditors' meeting broke up, one to fly for a train heading south; some to join hilarious parties in the banquet halls of the hotel; Jabez

Gorm to return to a big, stern-looking house in which many servants had prepared with professional efficiency the seasonal decorations, the gifts and the festive touches that fashion and social custom required to be provided for the children of this very elegant house.

Seven o'clock next morning. The bells were ringing their annual message of peace and good will. A choir in a little nearby church was singing, "Noel, Noel." Charlie Gorm, five years old and full of faith in the things that really matter, was dancing round the paternal bed of the Gorm household.

"Look, Daddy, what Santa Claus left for me! 'N' a letter with it an' everything! Look!"

Jabez roused himself and read: "I was cleaning up your house when I saw the kid's stocking hung up and remembered about Christmas. Hate to do anybody a bad turn on Christmas Eve. Here's a buck for the baby's Christmas. Look out for your silver and other valuables some other night."

Not so long ago Jabez had taken prizes at Sunday school. Funny that the only lesson he could think of now was about another thief who repented in time and won the first guaranteed pass through the pearly gates of heaven.

Jabez Gorm would have given a hand to call that meeting back. But they were gone their several ways. Not for months could they all be got together again.

The church bells pealed once more. To Jabez Gorm they seemed to sing, "Too late, too late, too late, too late."

5,000,000 MEMBERS GOAL OF RED CROSS ANNUAL ROLL CALL

Need of Expansion Due to Excessive Demands for Disaster Relief and Other Services.

A Red Cross membership of 5,000,000 in the United States will be sought this year during the Eleventh Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24, Chairman John Barton Payne announced following completion of a study of the demands which the past year made on all branches of the Red Cross organization.

He stressed particularly the increasing demands of disaster relief as pointing to the need for an increased membership to aid in carrying the growing responsibility in this field.

"For several years our membership has remained at a little more than 3,000,000 adults," he said. "We are proud of this membership. It is a body of our choice spirits, but there are many more of like spirit who should be counted in this Roll Call. We need at least 5,000,000 adult members. We are obliged to draw annually upon our reserves, and the demands upon us increase each year. Our Roll Call funds should meet our normal needs and add something to our reserves for the great disasters. We must have a large reserve. No one can tell when a situation may arise when this reserve will be essential to the lives of thousands."

"The Red Cross cannot wait to raise funds," Judge Payne declared. "Action prompt, instant, is its life. Instant action means the lives of many. It must be strong, it must be ready; this means a large reserve."

Total expenditures of the American Red Cross in the fiscal year to June 30 last in all fields amounted to $16,139,345.60, of which $11,360,348.60 represented the National Organization's appropriations and $4,779,000 the cost to the Red Cross local districts. Included in this total was a disaster relief, for which $2,216,893.31 had actually been expended to the close of the year. This does not cover expenditures which continued to be made in the Mississippi Valley flood, or in other disasters originating during the fiscal year but whose operations extended over into the current period.

Service to disabled veterans, another outstanding demand on the organization, called for $2,330,223.86, and service to men of the Regular Army and Navy, $507,832.50. Maintenance of an enrolled Nurses' Reserve, from which the needs of disaster service and other emergencies are met, and which numbers more than 45,000 nurses totalled $45,249.83. For the Public Health Nursing program, a nationwide activity of the Red Cross, $801,068.99 was expended. Other services contributing to health and well-being included instruction in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, for which $165,380.16 was spent; Nutrition instruction, which teaches thousands annually correct food principles in relation to health, $171,370.73; First Aid and Life Saving, a service which is actually curtailing accident and water casualties, $354,750.06; Junior Red Cross, the children's branch of Red Cross activity, and one of the most unique organizations in the world, $582,434.23.

Other Red Cross Chapter activities, including Home Service to civilians amounted to $1,222,000; while other national domestic operations required $236,147.17.

An outstanding American contribution to the rest of the world in Red Cross assistance in foreign disasters, which the report shows, called for $256,962 to the end of the fiscal year. Activities under the League of Red Cross Societies, Junior Red Cross foreign projects, assistance to American insular chapters, and other foreign and insular work completed the demands on the total appropriation for the year.

These expenditures were cited by Chairman Payne as emphasizing the need for a growing membership and increased income.

Methodist
Sunday school officials of the Methodist church have announced the evening of Friday, December 23, as the date set for the program to be given by that organization. The entertainment will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

At that time the Sunday school will put on a cantata in which all of the departments of the school will be represented. Following the entertainment Santa will pay his visit. The children of the community are all welcome to attend the program and Santa will leave his usual Christmas treat of candy, nuts and oranges for each child.

Sunday Evening Program Announced
On next Sunday evening, December 18, there will be special music and "The Other Wise Man" by Van Dyke will be read by Miss Lila Hawkins.

The following Sunday evening the adult choir, augmented by a number of young people, will present a Christmas pageant, "Adoration of the King and the Shepherds."

Last Sunday morning a novel practice was inaugurated when the pastor at the close of the service of worship requested each person in the audience to shake hands with five people before leaving.

At the regular quarterly meeting this week plans were made for the interior decoration of the church. The heating plant has recently been overhauled and remodeled so that adequate warmth is insured and it was thought that redecoration of the church should be the next activity undertaken.

Throng of People Pay Tribute at Funeral of Miss Jessie Runyard

The funeral of Miss Jessie Runyard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Runyard of this place, was held at the Methodist church Saturday afternoon, the Rev. A. M. Krah officiating.

Miss Runyard was born in Antioch on August 30, 1903. She spent her entire girlhood here with the exception of a period of about two years in which she lived with her family in Racine. She was a graduate of the local grade school and of Antioch Township high school.

Subsequent to her graduation from high school she attended the University of Illinois at Champaign for two years and then taught in the public school at Long Grove, Illinois. She returned to Illinois in the fall of 1924 and took her degree there in the spring of 1926.

Last year she taught in the high school at Rochester, Illinois, but was forced to give up her work a short time before the school year closed because of illness. Her death, which was due to tuberculosis, occurred at the home last Tuesday evening, December 3rd.

Miss Runyard was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church here and had always been an active worker in the organization. She possessed talent in music and had always given freely of her time and talent in the service of the church both here and in the community where she taught.

Miss Runyard is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Runyard, her grandfather, Alonzo Little, and a brother, Alonzo Runyard, as well as many more distant relatives.

At the funeral at the church Saturday afternoon a throng of the friends of Miss Runyard gathered to pay tribute to her life and influence. Seven of her university friends were

We are glad to see so many people on the street with their arms full of bundles. Guess they are taking our advice. "Do it early" and then, maybe, one of them is for us.

Only 9 days left. Hurry!

Winter is upon us, is your home provided with storm doors and windows?

Bought the Missus a new buck saw for a Xmas gift but don't tell her, she might get me a new dishpan.

Mrs. Housewife, aren't you tired

A skull half an inch thick and unearched in Arizona, was sent to Washington, without the formality of an election.

W. J. Rooney, of Chicago, has had his summer cottage, on Channel Lake, remodeled into an all year home. This is now one of the coziest little homes in the lake region and it speaks very highly the ability of our local contractor, V. H. Dupre, who did the work.

You know we sell Xmas presents, too. Come in and let us offer a few suggestions and then you can close the list.

We are glad to hear that the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, has started to function in Antioch. This is indeed, a noble organization and well deserves the support of every loyal American citizen.

We can provide you with French doors, mirror doors, breakfast nooks, window seats and all those little artistic touches that makes your home more livable.

board provided that the bond issue election shall not be held until and unless the Supreme court declares the gasoline tax law constitutional.

County Highway Superintendent R. M. Lobdell presented a detailed account to the board of the roads which the new bond issue would pave and received the commendation of that body for the manner in which he had planned the road construction.

The new issue will allow for a cement concrete pavement 18 feet wide to be improved with a graded way 34 feet wide. The cost of the Hickory road strip will be $63,000; its length is two and one eighth miles. The Leona Lake-Grass Lake road is one and one eighth miles long and will cost, it is estimated, $32,000.

Other roads included in the proposed paving program and the estimated cost of building are: Deerfield Avenue road, 2 miles, cost $89,000; Buckley road, 1 1/2 miles, cost $45,000; Twenty-second Street road, 1 1/2 miles, cost $11,000; Gages Lake road, 5 miles, cost $33,000; Mundelein-Buffalo Grove road, 9 3/4 miles, cost $272,000; Ivanhoe-Mundelein road, 1/2 mile $14,000; Lake Zurich road, one and one eighth mile, cost $32,000; Slocum Lake road, 1 mile, cost $28,000; Wilson road, 4 1/2 miles, cost $49,000; Lake Zurich-Mundelein road, 5 3/4 miles, cost $161,000.

All of these are state aid roads, and in addition to those already named the state highway department will be asked to name ten new roads on the state system and they will then be included in the proposed bond issue.

CHRISTMAS SAVING ACCOUNTS WILL AID SANTA CLAUS' VISIT

Owners of Funds Set Aside For Yuletide To Draw Thousands.

This is the season when everyone either cashes in on his or her Christmas savings account or wishes that one were available and vows not to let another year slip by without the precaution. Seventy-six lucky individuals who had Christmas Savings accounts at the State Bank of Antioch will go forth this week and next to spend an aggregate of $4140.76 accumulated for the purpose during the past year. This is in addition to the 1865 savers who have deposited an amount in excess of $456,000 in the savings department proper of the bank during the past year and the depositors who have accumulated an aggregate or more than $395,000 in the checking accounts carried by the bank.

Christmas Savings in the local banks have been in operation only a short time and consequently the number of people taking advantage of this novel plan of financing Santa Claus has been relatively small this year. Thrift and Christmas Savings accounts have divided the intention of the Christmas saver at the First National Bank, about 350 people availing taken advantage of the two. Both institutions are offering the Christmas Savings plans for next year and many have already signed up for the 2—$15,000 for maintenance of the county trunk highway.

3—$10,000 for purchase of highway machinery.

There is also levied $12,000 for the paving of Highway 83 as mentioned above, which is to be returned to the county in 1929 from state aid funds. This brings the total of the county road taxes levied this year to $70,065.15.

Christmas Savings checks were mailed by both banks last week and bank officials report that their exchange for cash is taking place daily with the indications in favor of a well loaded sleigh for Santa Claus this year.

GIFTS MEN APPRECIATE

Ensemble

The ensemble, or "blend," is the newest gift idea. It's really easy to explain: color harmony in haberdashery expresses it exactly. To blend with a man's suit we select shirt, tie, hosiery and handkerchiefs, for example: all with an inter-related theme of pattern and color. The result is an achievement in smart appearance. Let the ensemble help you solve your gift problem.

"LUCKY NUMBERS" OF ANY SORT TABOOED BY ATT'Y GENERAL

State Employment Bureau Placed 170,797 In Jobs Last Year.

"Lucky numbers" of any sort are taboo under Illinois laws according to a recent ruling by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. An opinion to this effect was handed down to the state's attorney of Union county, where in a certain town the merchants gave tickets with purchases, the lucky number winning a $25 prize. The Attorney General quoted a supreme court case in which illegal lottery was defined as one which contemplates distribution of prizes by chance and a chance to win or lose by the drawing.

A total of 170,797 men and women obtained employment in the last fiscal year through the efforts and service of the free employment bureau maintained by the Illinois department of labor. About half as many women as men were placed, and of the 175,431 who applied for work less than 16,000 failed to obtain it. Jobs were in dozens of occupations, including agriculture, building and construction, clerical, domestic and personal service, hotel and restaurant work, wholesale and trades and common labor. Thirteen employment bureaus are maintained by the department of labor in various cities of the state.

Illinois has disbursed a total of $55,073,438.50 to the veterans of the World War in the service from this state between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918. A total of 286,611 claims were acted upon by the Service Recognition Board, and of this Illinois Bonus Act. Final report of the Service Recognition Board was made recently by Governor Len Small, chairman; Garrett De Kinney, treasurer, and Adjutant General Carlos E. Black, secretary of the board. The report is most exhaustive, giving a complete history of the bonus payments in Illinois.

Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling, who has been ill at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel in the Capital City, has been taken to his home in Rockford. He was accompanied by Mrs. Sterling and their daughter who remained at his bedside while he was so seriously ill. Mr. Sterling suffered throat hemorrhages while enroute to Springfield several weeks ago.

Seven thousand pieces of literature on Springfield, including Lincoln booklets, and two thousand medals given by the Illinois Watch Company of this city, were distributed from the Springfield Chamber of Commerce booth at the International Travel Exposition held at the Sherman Hotel in Chicago recently. Springfield was the only city in the middle west, with the exception of Chicago and Hot Springs, having a booth at the exposition. England, Germany, France, Switzerland, Norway, Denmark and other European countries, Mexico, Canada, and many cities and states in the United States had booths and exhibits.

An official request to members of the bar to stay away to long, for there may be a special session of the Illinois General Assembly "not to go General Assembly in December to consider a new primary election law" was sent out recently. The request was particularly designed for those members of the legislature who are planning trips to Washington when congress convenes in December, and incidentally to attend the annual gathering of the Rivers and Lakes congress.

The special session that will be called by Governor Small if necessary, came closer recently following proceedings in the circuit court of Lee county where a case attacking the validity of the primary law is pending. It was said that the governor is considering a session for December, while some of his supporters are said to favor a later date. "Illinois will have a primary law if it is within my power to create it," Governor Small declared in Chicago recently.

The initials "C. P. A." following a man's name do not necessarily mean that he is a certified public accountant, and use of the initials when the person has no state license is not necessarily a misdemeanor, according to an opinion which has been given by Attorney General Carlstrom to the state's attorney of Lee county. Any person may style himself a "C. P. A.", the attorney general stated, but to offer his services to the public, however, he must have a license from the state.

Pertinent articles on National Defense by President David Kinley of the University of Illinois, Colonel Merry, R. O. T. C. Commandant, and W. F. phases of National Defense has operated against the public understanding clearly the purpose of training in the university. The National Guard, the Reserve, the C. M. T. C., and other patriotic organizations have worked toward the same goal but apparently without an attempt to co-ordinate and interlock their efforts. Illinois Reserve officers have taken the initial step just outlined, with the thought that ultimately the expressed opinion of these various agencies could be brought together, while the outlook of all those interested in the National Security of the country was enlarged and unified.

It is particularly fitting that Reserve officers use the University of Illinois as a model institution inasmuch as it has the largest R. O. T. C. unit in the country and is the one that General Pershing called the best. The R. O. T. C. project was fathered by a former president, Dr. Edmund James James, for his ideas and recommendations were incorporated in the National Defense Act.

If You Want To Know The Truth Come

The RECLUSE of FIFTH AVENUE

by WYNDHAM MARTYN

COPYRIGHT in the UNITED STATES W.N.U. SERVICE

"You are not," he protested. "But I am. It is impossible to avoid knowing it. When Raxon gets those letters nothing can save Mr. McKimber from constant humiliation. If you had heard the tone Raxon used you would understand better. He will compel Mr. McKimber to do all the little and big disgraceful things that might hurt the new Raxon's reputation. The record Mr. McKimber has built up will be trampled in the mud. Robin has told me so much about his father. I have heard so much of the acts of kindness which he hides from the world. He has educated hundreds of poor children, for example, and people don't know it because of that rather bluff, overbearing manner. How can I deny having helped to send the father of my Robin to disgrace?" She was silent for a moment. "I can see him losing his self-respect and sinking lower and lower. His wife and son won't understand. It will be horrible for them. I have sent away the man I love believing that I am heartless, without faith or honor. And I can never open my lips to justify myself. There is nothing that can save either of us."

"Don't say that," Malet cried. He was deeply moved. "There is always a way out when it is right that there should be. And if ever a thing was right, it is that you and he should belong to one another. Something shall be done."

"There is nothing any one can do," she said.

"Doesn't one exaggerate after dinner?" he laughed. "My niece, go to bed and sleep. The least of all your uncles is on the job."

It was to Peter Milman that he first addressed himself. "Milman," he began, "I'm very much interested in the outcome of a romance that began under my eyes at Great Rock."

Malet hung himself down in a chair and lighted a cigarette. "You know that to men of middle age who have of necessity passed by the time of love and roses there is something very fascinating in seeing splendid youth in its great moments."

Peter Milman did not show his visitor that this interruption was unwelcome. Milman was engaged in planning how to get Paul Raxon to this house eager and yet unsuspecting. And Floyd Malet was beginning to talk of love and youth.

"I suppose so," he assented courteously.

"I'm talking about Nita," Malet went on. "I suppose hundreds of men have fallen under her fascinations."

He laughed a little ruefully. "I am one of the oldsters who admit it."

"So do I," said the other. "To me she is one of the most lovely creatures I have ever met."

"The man she fell in love with—"

Malet continued.

"She fell in love with?" Milman demanded. "Really that's interesting. Her father did not tell me."

"Who was it?"

"Young McKimber, Robin by name."

"He will be very rich," said Milman, "and Barnes' objections can be overruled. I have never met the McKimbers, but he is said to be a man of good character."

"They can't possibly marry," Malet declared. "She has broken it off with him, and she won't change her mind. Poor child, it was a wound that may never heal."

"Why, if she loves him and he loves her, should she do that?"

"Because she knows that she is acting for the enemies of her father."

"We are not Mr. McKimber's enemies," Milman retorted.

"We are going to put in Raxon's hands what will make McKimber for ever his slave. That's not too strong a term. We are going to sell McKimber body and soul to Paul Raxon. Do you suppose, knowing that, Nita can marry McKimber's son?"

Milman frowned. "Dear, dear," he said, almost testily. "Nita went there for a definite purpose which had as much to do with her father personally as it had for you, Bradney, or myself. These complications are annoying, most annoying, but they cannot affect our plans."

"My dear Milman," Malet said, "if you are blaming Nita for falling in love, you are making the first absurd remark I have ever heard to drop from your lips. Love comes unsought, unexpected, often in its beginnings unwanted. I tell you I saw the whole thing. She held back; she tried to avoid him, but the circumstances were such that she could not. There were dances and tennis parties, riding expeditions and golf. Nita could not get away. She was, as you remarked, there for a definite purpose. Robin is as splendid in his way as she is. I think he is as badly broken up as Nita. You see, he cannot understand it. Naturally she cannot give him even a hint of it."

"I'm immeasurably sorry you had to tell me this," said Peter Milman.

"Why?" Malet demanded.

"Because it infuses an element of bitterness in what was wholly a mood of victory. I am sorry for them both, but is it not possible that you with your artist's sensitiveness have put this in too vivid a light?"

"If anything, I've understated it," Malet could see that Peter Milman was genuinely disturbed.

"Let me put it another way. Is it not possible that you, with your ready sympathy, have imagined the temporary infatuation that is so often seen in house parties to be a grande passion, something epic, as was the love of Dante for Beatrice Portinari?"

"Milman," said Malet slowly, "if I could believe you were right, I should be perfectly happy. But I saw them together. I spoke to each of them when they had said good-by. No, it was the real thing. They will never completely recover. Nita has slain her own happiness because of the loyalty she thinks she owes to us."

"Thinks," Milman repeated. "Is there any doubt about that? Was it lightly, do you suppose, that I stooped to what we have done? I have never deluded myself about it. We have done what men of honor do not attempt. What punishment Raxon deserves is not ours to administer. After I have forced him to pay, I shall never be quite the clean man I was. I shall be something a little less. I knew this very well before I invited you to join me. You must not expect me to be swayed by anything now."

"Do you think I am trying to swerve you, as you call it?"

"For what other purpose have you told me this? You have said, in so many words, that if we do as we have planned we are breaking Nita's heart."

"You will be," Malet asserted, "but you'll never know it from her. That's how she defines loyalty."

"Have you forgotten what your life has been of late and to whom you owe all your unhappiness?"

"I am past fifty," Malet answered, "and what is left of my life seems very small and unimportant when I compare it with the happiness that is owed Nita."

"By comparison I see myself in a very poor light," Milman answered. "But there is Barnes to think of, and Bradney."

Malet sighed. "It was too big a thing to expect. I had to tell you what your victory meant to Nita. I was going to appeal to the others, but as you have refused, it will not be of much use."

Peter Milman paced up and down the room. What Malet had said made him unhappy. Chivalrous by nature, just, and not embittered by what life had brought him, he was confronted with a situation unparalleled in his career. He remembered noticing that Nita was depressed, unlike her vivid, joyful self. She had drooped like a tall lily. Now he knew why. And, knowing it, the task of disciplining Raxon lost its savor.

"I have not refused definitely," he said. "I must think it over in all its bearings. In the end there is little doubt but I shall have to decide against you. I wish it had not happened. I am unsettled." Suddenly he held out his hand to the man who was willing to do the magnificent thing and make the sacrifice gladly. "I must add to my strong personal liking for you an increased respect. Not many would do as you have done. Come and see me about this before breakfast tomorrow."

Peter Milman Paced up and Down the Room.

Malet continued.

"She fell in love with?" Milman demanded. "Really that's interesting. Her father did not tell me."

"Who was it?"

"Young McKimber, Robin by name."

"He will be very rich," said Milman, "and Barnes' objections can be overruled. I have never met the McKimbers, but he is said to be a man of good character."

Milman frowned. "Dear, dear," he said, almost testily. "Nita went there for a definite purpose which had as much to do with her father personally as it had for you, Bradney, or myself. These complications are annoying, most annoying, but they cannot affect our plans."

Barnes listened to the story that had been told Milman and Bradney.

"What's the good of telling me this?" Barnes said. "Do you suppose I want to go back to Peckskill?"

"You won't have to. You are six hundred dollars to the good, your wardrobe is enlarged, and you've Nita. Milman admits that what we have done leaves us less clean than we were."

"It won't hurt me," said Barnes. "You wouldn't notice it on my hide."

"I'm not approaching you from that angle," Malet said craftily. "I'm reminding you that you are winning success at Nita's expense. I'm not in the least doubtful about you. With Bradney and Milman there was a much greater chance of defeat."

"What the devil are you counting on?" Barnes demanded.

Malet put his arm on the bigger man's shoulder.

"On the thoroughbred strain in you. I'm relying on the fact that when the test comes the thoroughbreds respond."

He watched Barnes, who sat silent for almost five minutes. Barnes did not break the silence until he had torn up the copious notes he had made concerning the ranch in California, over which he knew now he would never ride.

"I'll do what the others want me to," he said.

Malet knocked again at Bradney's door.

"Barnes has come through," he said, stalling. "I know you despise men given over to sport and athletics, but when it comes to a showdown they have the right kind of heart. God protect me from a world governed by intellect. Good night."

Next morning Malet went to Milman's room before breakfast.

"Before you say anything," he began, "I may as well tell you that Barnes is on my side, and Bradney ready to do what you say."

"I thought they would be," said Milman. "I have not slept, and I tried in vain to convince myself you were wrong. I give in. I have had a great deal of fighting to do to meet the changed conditions. Tell me, how would you like to live just outside Florence?"

"You ask me, a sculptor, how I should like to live there, near the Bargello and the Uffizi?"

"I did not tell you, I think, of my villa there. It lies on the hills to the west of the city and overlooks the gardens of the Villa Palmieri. It has about twenty rooms, and was well furnished. The gardens are productive and charming. Years ago I gave it to a distant cousin. She died recently, and it comes to me again. I find, after settling my affairs, there will be enough for us all to live comfortably in Italy, where the exchange rate favors us very much."

"I don't understand you," stammered Malet. "Was this indication that Peter Milman had deliberately thrown away this New York home?"

"I sent Nita to Nita's room with a request that she would give me five minutes after you left last night. You were quite right. I shall always remember you were the first one of us to do the right thing. I could never live in this house happily knowing that to do so was the price of her unhappiness. I am growing older, but I do not think I am growing bitterer. It is sometimes better not to succeed. Perhaps our reward may be that we have got out of our ruts. We were all plodding along deep furrows, seeing nothing ahead. I had almost forgotten the villa outside Florence until I saw it mentioned in Lodon's bill. We shall live very comfortably in a house built on a meadow that Dante once owned. My cousin, poor lady, essayed to model in clay, and there is an excellent studio. For Barnes there will be a change—and Chianti. Bradney shall write a book or do what he chooses. I am not to be left alone. I have come, after years of isolation, to depend on you." He broke off abruptly as Nita came in.

"Well, my dears," she said, "what plot have I interrupted? I came to see why the coffee was getting cold downstairs."

"We are on our way to Florence," said Malet.

Red Cross Nurses Aid In Every Great Disaster

Two major disasters, the Florida hurricane and the Mississippi flood, required the services of Red Cross nurses in large numbers over a long period of time in the past year.

In the Florida storm, service of 350 nurses is recorded. It is estimated that about 100 others assisted in the first few days as volunteers. The total number of nurses in the Mississippi valley flood was approximately 200.

In every major disaster the services of Red Cross nurses are needed, lending added importance to the enrolled reserve which now numbers more than 45,000 Red Cross nurses. These nurses are available for any emergency, though they are on duty in hospitals and in private practice. They constitute the reserve of the Army and Navy nurse corps in time of war.

Besides emergency duty, Red Cross nurses assisted materially in many local services, Chapter reports to National Headquarters indicate. The Eleventh Annual Roll Call of the Red Cross, from November 11 to 24, is pointed out, is an opportunity for everyone to become identified with the Red Cross.

JILTED BY GIRL 50 YEARS AGO; STILL A HERMIT

Aged Briton Hasn't Looked at a Woman in Half a Century.

Great Canfield, England.—In a hermit's rural fortress near this little Essex town lives James Mason, seventy years old, who for 50 years has hid himself from the eyes of men.

When he was a youth of twenty his sweetheart married another man, and Mason fled into seclusion to hide his inconsolable sorrow. For 50 years he has not looked upon the face of a woman.

The woman who jilted Mason still lives and this year celebrated her golden wedding anniversary.

Mason's brother, Thomas, two years younger than the recluse, devoted himself to the care of James and throughout the five decades has been his sole attendant and companion.

Refuses Doctor.

Only three times during this half century of exile has James Mason been seen by men other than his brother, and these were all within the last few months. Once the old man, tortured by rheumatism and a threat of paralysis, feared he was nearing death. He refused to be seen by a physician, but summoned a clergyman for a secret conference.

For Fifty Years He Has Not Looked Upon the Face of Woman.

Again recently the hermit applied for an old-age pension, and to obtain this he submitted to an interview by a pension officer. At first he declined to receive the official, but his increasing infirmity and the growing poverty of the aging pair forced him to break his rule.

A newspaper man who sought to visit Mason on the fiftieth anniversary of his self-imprisonment failed to gain admittance, but saw the face of the graybeard through a window.

Makes Farm Fortress.

When the youth made his vow to abandon human society he and his brother bought two acres of farm land and proceeded to transform it into a stronghold of complete privacy. Bristling hedges and a corrugated iron fence guard the borders. Would-be intruders have encountered barbed wire barriers and tunnels with trap doors to defeat their curiosity or their humanitarian impulses.

The hermit himself lives in a small hut flanked by a jungle of thorny bushes and thistles. During his lifetime of isolation he has read only the Bible and copies of a religious journal which his faithful brother has brought

Porter's Kiss Angers Woman, but Not Court

Rome.—The Ravenna tribunal has decided that it is permissible for a man to kiss a woman in public, even if the kiss is not willingly given by the lady. It was held, in fact, that such a salute is not an outrage against decency.

This momentous judgment was delivered when a somewhat unusual case was submitted for the weighty decision of the law.

A pretty woman, accompanied by her husband, alighted at the railway station and asked a young railwayman to carry her trunk inside. The youth was so struck by her beauty that he put his arm around her neck and kissed her in the presence of her astonished spouse, not to say a large number of passengers.

The offended lady gave the man a good punch and the husband followed suit, even more vigorously. Finally the man was arrested.

The judge could find nothing in law making the embrace a punishable offense and he acquitted the two impetuous porters. The railway authorities, who had dismissed the offender, thereupon reinstated him.

The Yellow Target A Christmas Story by Robert Stead

ANDRE SANDERSEN stroked the lean barrel of his rifle as he sat in the window of the little shanty on his prairie homestead. The full moon of a Christmas Eve poured its white light on illimitable wastes of snow. A shaft of that same light fell through the window, gleamed along the rifle on Andre's knees, played about the great hands that fondled its barrel.

But Andre was not conscious of the moonlight, except as it served to accentuate his loneliness. Across the prairie, half a mile to the southward, lay the shanty of his brother, Axel, and his brother's wife, Olga. A point of yellow light shone from Axel's window like a star on the horizon. Half a mile! Andre's rifle would carry two thousand yards, but it would need a rare marksman to hit that point of light half a mile away. He sighted the rifle carefully, estimating to himself whether there was any possibility of finding that little target. Then, as though convinced of the futility of such a purpose, he returned the weapon tenderly to his knee.

For exactly three years the Sanderse brothers had lived as strangers, although their homesteads adjoined each other. It was three years ago this very Christmas Eve that Axel had brought Olga, his bride, to share his shanty and his life—Olga, who, in far-off Scandinavia, had pledged herself to Andre! Axel had met her at the railway station, thirty miles away, while Andre lay at home, burning with fever. Then, when she came, it was as Axel's wife!

Andre never had asked, and never learned, what had happened at the little prairie town when the fair-haired, lonely, tired girl rushed to the arms of Axel, his brother. The three had been playmates together, but Andre never had guessed that his brother loved her, too. If, in that moment, Axel had taken advantage of her loneliness and her delight at meeting an old friend to force his suit to instant decision, Andre saw in their action nothing but treachery and deceit. Never since had he stepped on his brother's farm, and he had given Axel to understand that if either he or Olga crossed the dividing line the rifle would bark and bite to kill.

During the short but busy summers Andre managed to drown his anger in work, but in winter the pangs of loneliness were upon him. They always were worse on moonlit nights. Then he would sit in his window, fondling his rifle. Especially on Christmas Eve, the anniversary of the blighting of his life, his loneliness and rage were unbearable.

Andre sighted his rifle again, but it was against all reason that he could find a target so small, so far. Very well—he could go to the target. It was a plan that long had simmered in the back of his mind; tonight he would put it into effect. He drew on his heavy coat, his cap; he drove a bright brass cartridge into the barrel and saw that there were others in the magazine, and set out across the snow, silent save for the crunching of his heavy boots and the strange clamor of his heart.

At first he walked hurriedly, but as he neared the window he reduced his pace. Silently he crept up, in the shadow, along the wall. Three years ago this very night.

Presently he was at the window. Stealthily he raised his head until he could see within.

In a corner of the little room was a small spruce tree, which Axel, no doubt, had cut somewhere by the river. And Axel and Olga, very happy, it seemed, were knotting it with bits of colored paper. On a table, full in Andre's sight, a yellow-haired baby clapped his hands with glee.

Andre watched the scene, spell-bound, for a moment; then slumped to the ground. For a long while he lay there, oblivious to the cold, fighting, wrestling. Then, leaving his rifle on the snow, he made his way to the door, and knocked.

"Why, Andre!" they exclaimed, as he stood on their threshold.

"Peace," said Andre. "It is the Night of Peace. I bring you peace—and forgiveness."

The Christmas sun was shining when Andre retraced his steps across the snow, to feed his stock.

Lake Villa Man Wins Verdict Against Twin Lakes Lumber Co.

Lawrence McNeil, former manager of the Harbaugh Lumber company's yards at Twin Lakes, Wisconsin, now of Lake Villa, was adjudged not guilty last week by a jury in circuit court in Kenosha county, on a charge of having embezzled $925 in company funds.

It had been alleged by Charles Harbaugh, lumber magnate, that his ex-manager had "converted to his own use" a sum of $925. The alleged embezzlement is said to have been carried on over a period of two years, according to evidence introduced by Attorney Robert V. Baker, counsel for the lumber firm.

McNeil had maintained that he did not convert the money, but had entered it on his personal account because it represented a bonus on his two years work for the company. He asserted an agreement had been made between Harbaugh and himself that he was to receive $32 a week out of $175 a month salary the first year and $200 a month for the second year. He said the $925 represents the difference between the $32 a week and the $175 and $200 a month.

Attorney Calvin Stewart, for McNeil, submitted evidence to show that there had been a salary arrangement as McNeil claimed, and that his client was rightfully entitled to the money. He moved for a directed verdict on this question. It was granted by Judge Belden, and the jury, after being out one hour, found for McNeil.

Obsequies For Mrs. Miller of Lake Villa Held Last Friday

The funeral of Mrs. Adele L. Miller of Lake Villa was held from the home on Friday afternoon with Rev. McKelvey officiating, assisted by Rev. Dixon of the Episcopal church at Antioch. Mrs. Howard and Mrs. McKelvey sang. Burial was in the Lake Villa cemetery.

Adele L. Pierce was born in Kenosha, Wis., June 20, 1857, and passed from this life at her home in Lake Villa, Illinois, on December 7, 1927, at the age of 70 years, 5 months and 17 days.

In 1877 she was united in marriage to M. S. Miller at Girard, Kansas, and to this union were born two sons and two daughters. She leaves to mourn her passing two daughters, Mrs. F. M. Hamlin, and Mrs. Troy

C. Ballenger, and one granddaughter, Bajan Hamlin, all of Lake Villa. Her husband and two sons, Harry W. and John Carlisle preceded her in death a few years ago.

Mrs. Miller is well known in Lake Villa and vicinity, having resided there for nearly 40 years. Her sudden death was a shock to the community for, although she had been under the care of a physician for the past few weeks, her condition was not considered serious.

Besides her immediate family she leaves one sister, Mrs. Mary Dalrymple of Lake Villa, and one brother, Morton Pierce of New York and a host of friends.

"She lived in a house by the side of the road, And was a friend to man."

The judge gave him 60 days, too, for contempt of court.

Kenosha county's complete tax levy for 1928, as authorized by the county board of supervisors in action taken recently, totals $373,301.81, this including the county taxes proper of $230,654.17, the state taxes levied against the county amounting to $67,367.89, the county highway taxes amounting to $79,066.16 and the special charges assessed against the various taxing units of the county. This represents a big decrease from the tax levy for the county last year despite the fact that there was no general state tax last year. The total county tax levy last year was $499,000. The slash in county taxes was partly made possible by the utilization of the $250,000 sinking fund, created last year from accumulations of other years, which amount is to be distributed over a period of five years.

Antioch Palace Bowlers Make Good Showing at Waukegan Sweepstakes

Three of the members of the Antioch Palace bowling team entered the bowling sweepstakes at Waukegan
Sunday. They were Lush Hinesey,
Charles Kraemer and Emil Stelskal.
Kraemer of Camp Lake who is one of the Palace's top notch bowlers and has a record score for the season's play cracked and was not fortunate enough to come within the 200 mark set for contestants.

Hussey started the contest on the strange alleys with a handicap bowling only 153 in the first game but came back strong with a score of 223 in the second game and 212, and 233 in the last two games, with a total of 821 plus to his credit and a final average of 205 1/4.

Stelskal got off to a better start scoring 220 in the first line and slipped in the middle of the contest to scores of 172 in the second with a rise on the third contest of to 192 and a flash of form in the fourth which netted him 236. He totaled 820 plus for an average of 205. Both Stelskal and Hussey will undoubtedly be in the money.

The three are members of the Antioch Palace Bowling team and hold high position on Palace records.

ANTIOCH HIGH TAKES
TWO FROM WAUKEGAN2nd Heavies and Freshmen
Teams Drop Opening Game to Locals.

The local high school basketball squads opened the season with a double victory over Waukegan Freshmen and Second Heavies last Saturday night at the Antioch Township
High School gymnasium.

The Heavies came through with a 26 to 22 victory over Waukegan's second heavies but only after a hard fought struggle and an uphill battle in the last quarter to overcome the three point lead of Waukegan.

Both teams played a good passing game for early season but failed to sink their easy shots. The locals defense did not function as smoothly as it should but another week's practice should remedy this fault.

For Waukegan, Budranas, Bear-man and Dickshot played the best game while Spicer, Bernolfo and Wertz were good on offense and defense for Antioch.

The Antioch lightweights had little trouble in defeating the Waukegan
Freshmen 21 to 10.

The first half was slow and the local boys only had a 6 to 4 advantage at the half but in the second half their offensive men began to hit the hoop and soon gained a lead that Waukegan could not overcome, although they were fighting hard all the time.

On Friday of this week Leyden
Township High School of Franklin Park comes to Antioch for the locals first conference game and it promises to be a hard one for Leyden has shown their strength by defeating York High of Elmhurst.

This game will show the chance that Antioch stands in the conference race and everyone is working hard for a victory.

Visitor, Enroute To Antioch, Is Injured

Mrs. Floyd White of Waukegan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Watson of this place, was seriously injured in an auto accident near Sand

Lake Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. White and their small son were enroute here from Waukegan to visit at the home of Mrs. Watson's parents when a Packard collided with the machine in which they were riding. Mrs. White had the fragment loose from her shoulder and rest of the occupants of the two got off with minor bruises.
